

Stockouts: The Struggle for Supply Chain Labor

Supply chain workers are the lifeblood of your operations, and you need to ensure they are ready to keep pace with the demands of the business and your customers. However, respondents in our recent survey A Heavy Lift: Supply Chain Trends for 2023 indicated labor concerns as the top issue now, and in the near future, identifying their top challenges:

52%
report training times are too long

50%
note frequent worker turnover as a top challenge

41%
see digital upskilling as a critical need

How Are Supply Chain Operations Responding?

New or expanded technology investments and increased automation are among their top plans. Learn more with free access to our report, so you can assess your operations plans against over 200 supply chain industry peers. Then explore how our Velocity platform is transforming the supply chain worker experience.

View Survey Results 