Don't get fooled by hidden costs

With other UEM providers, there's a good chance of hidden charges or variable pricing – for software that doesn't deliver capabilities equal to those of Ivanti. And once you're locked in, they may raise prices, or scaling is costly.

With Ivanti, you're already enjoying transparent pricing (and predictable value) for world-class performance. You can manage your budget without having to worry about needing to invest in additional software you didn't plan for or the disruptions that often result from moving to a new vendor.

Vendor lock-in? Not your problem

Why risk getting locked into a single provider that may limit your ability to scale and innovate? Remaining competitive in the fast-paced market requires flexible solutions that integrate easily.

Contrast that with Ivanti's well-defined roadmap and customer-centric focus on your success. Working with a partner that supports a truly open ecosystem makes adopting up-to-date technology a walk in the park.

Challenge:

A large US Government IT security support agency was approaching renewal of their UEM solution. They were considering moving away from Ivanti and leveraging an enterprise license agreement to attempt reduction of costs. Their current Ivanti UEM solution enabled them to secure more than 10,000 devices and workstations. This solution had to be highly secure and scalable, and meet stringent DOD Certifications and compliance standards. It was required to be full featured, supporting SSO (single sign on) and also needed to support certificate-based workflows. The customer also had a diverse mix of US and Overseas based employees and contractors, so security, efficiency and productivity were paramount.

Results:

Ivanti and our partners delivered a cost-effective solution, allowing the customer to avoid many unexpected and hidden costs of the competition, including those of migration. Ivanti provided a highly secure, certified and scalable UEM solution reaching out to over 150K devices with timely and responsive support. The customer renewed and expanded their Ivanti UEM solution, enabling their users to quickly and securely open and respond to encrypted emails, sign documents and address calendar events from a secure mobile device. Thanks to Ivanti, all users, whether a General or their Assistant, are able to easily protect devices and ensure management is held to the highest standard.
